

Elizabeth Vigee-Lebrun.

(April 16, 1755-March 30, 1842) was a French painter, and is recognized as the most famous woman painter of the eighteenth century. Her style is Rococo and shows interest in the subject of neoclassical painting.

her face is very relaxed and has confidence.

The attention to detail with the feather and flowers

There is light falling onto her face and shoulder.

The bluish gray clouds are relaxing and make her look peaceful.

The neoclassic dress gives her an elegance and she seems like she is well off.
